Organized very well

I greatly appreciated how it was a hybrid course in the sense that it was mostly asynchronous, but partially synchronous. It gave us time to learn and interpret for ourselves, but come back together to discuss.

The class was very well organized and the students received an email at the beginning of the week reminding them of every assignment due that week for that class. That aspect was very helpful in terms of keeping up with my assignments.

I loved this class. I think Daniel skibra is an amazing teacher and presents the information in an interesting and though provoking way.

Professor Skibra is a world-class teacher and I am glad to have him as an instructor at Loyola. He actually cares for his students and gives students every opportunity to succeed. He was always friendly in class and brought many laughs when I needed one after a long day. Thank you Professor Skibra for a great semester of class and I hope I have another class of yours(not being creepy, I just really liked your class).

I loved this class!

enjoyed having him as my professor for this course

Great Professor! I enjoyed this class and enjoyed the material that he was showing us. He did a great job with structuring the course and having all the materials we needed available for us.

Daniel Skibra is one of the nicest professor and people I've encountered at this level of education. Not only does he love the subject he is teaching but he loves his students and cares for their needs more so than any other teacher/professor i've interacted with in my entire educational career.

Professor Skibra is an amazing and interesting professor! He really cares about students' success and understanding.

The instructor took time to further explain concepts that were more difficult and constantly gave students the opportunity to participate and interact with each other whether it was through breakout rooms or just having a group discussion with the entire class.

Professor Skibra has been the most wonderful instructor I've had all semester. He has such a great way of delivering the material and really starting a conversation within students, both in synchronous and asynchronous classes. Taking his class was not my biggest excitement, but it ended up being my favorite course I took this semester. I think that really reflects how great this professor is.

What would you say are the particular strengths or weaknesses of this instructor?

I think his strengths are talking to students as they are an equal instead of a student

He consistently provided support and flexibility to all students, always responded to our questions and concerns, grades our work efficiently with great feedback, and was overall just a very nice guy.

He is very good at communication which I greatly appreciated, I very much so enjoyed being in his class!

One strength the instructor had that stood out to me was his ability to keep people interested and class and willing to participate, especially with everything being online.

I would say one of his greatest strengths is how his attitude and care towards the students encourages them to engage with the material deeply. Going into the course I was a bit wary of the subject but Daniel has made it my favorite course i've taken this semester. If he has any weaknesses I was never able to pinpoint or notice them.
